Committee sets demonstration policies

By NANCY BELL
Staff Reporter

The Student Conduct and Welfare Committee has approved policies to govern on-campus demonstrations by students or student organizations.

"The reason for these policies," said Olen E. Jones, dean of student affairs, "was a number of other institutions added policies concerning demonstrations to let the students know their responsibility to the university and the university's responsibility to the students."

The policies apply only to on-campus demonstrations. It is stated in the policies that "Marshall students and student organizations are free to examine and discuss all questions of interest to them, and to express opinion publicly and privately."

"Students are also free to support causes by orderly means which do not disrupt the regular and essential operation of the University."

It is requested, not required, that demonstrations be registered with the Office of Student Affairs by 4:30 p.m. of the day preceding the activity.

Information and advice regarding limitations and regulations for specific student demonstrations will be available in the Office of the Dean of Student Affairs.

Demonstrations are expected to be orderly and peaceful and are to be conducted without endangering or damaging personal or public property or harming any person, the new policy states.

Valid identification is to be carried by demonstrators and must be presented if requested by the campus security guards or other responsible officials.

"The Student Conduct and Welfare Committee thought it advisable to include these policies in the revised edition of the student handbook for 68-69, which we are in the process of revising," said Dean Jones. "A student committee is working with my office in revising the handbook for next year. And it will definitely be more detailed."

The regulations also state:

—Individual students or officers of a recognized campus organization who are planning a demonstration shall apprise participants of the standards and procedures to be followed. Sponsoring organizations, their officers, and individual participants will be held responsible for their conduct during demonstrations.

—Printed pamphlets, brochures, and leaflets need not be registered. There are no location restrictions on free distribution of literature outside University buildings or on University property.

—Local, state, and federal laws and University policies and procedures are to be observed.

—The rights of those who have reserved University facilities are to be respected. If a facility has been reserved for private or restricted use, demonstrators shall not enter the area. Further, demonstrators shall not enter classrooms, offices, business areas, or dining room.

—If a demonstration is directed toward a particular person, group or organization involved in an activity or program on campus, the person or representatives of such groups may file with appropriate University personnel any complaints regarding infringement upon their rights, or, concerns for the safety of their person/s and property.

Ethnic information will be collected

By DAN FIELDS
Editor-in-Chief

In compliance with the 1964 Civil Rights Act, the Registrar's Office will collect information from students enrolling for the fall semester 1968-69 dealing with pertinent ethnic statistics, Registrar Luther Bledsoe announced today.

This is the first time any such material has been gathered, Mr. Bledsoe said, and it will only be gathered first semester.

Students will be required to check items on a "statistical survey card" for the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare during registration.

"After completion, the cards will be removed from the students' folders and placed in separate, confidential folders to be examined for research purposes only," Mr. Bledsoe said.

Information obtained on the cards will also be used by HEW to see if the University is in compliance with the law under Title VI of the Civil Rights Act.

This law states: "No person in the United States shall on the grounds of race, color or national origin, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any program or activity receiving federal financial assistance."

The HEW Compliance Report requests statistics on the number of students listed by white, Negro and other categories who are:

1. Residing in college-owned housing.

2. Receiving athletic scholarships if such grants are awarded by the institution, regardless of the source of funds.

3. Receiving other financial aid administered by the institution.

4. Additionally, it requires the dollar value of aid given to white, Negro and other students.

"Access to the information on the cards will be restricted to faculty members desiring it for research purposes," Mr. Bledsoe said. "They must submit their request in writing, stating their purpose in requesting the information and the use to be made of it. These requests are screened by a committee of faculty members and administrators before the information can be released."

Steel arch(ery)

GAZING UP to the structure which will become the new Twin Towers dormitory, the man in the billboard seems oppressed by the hugeness of it (or maybe by the arrow-pierced apple on his head). The twin towers, tentatively scheduled for completion a year from now, will be 15 stories high — the tallest building in Huntington, according to C. Steve Szekely, superintendent of buildings and grounds.

An editorial

IMPACT lingers on

IMPACT 1968 is over, but not ended.

Stimulating, exciting and certainly one of the greatest weeks ever at Marshall, IMPACT and the problems it concerned will be around this campus for a long time.

Full effects of the programs cannot yet be accurately measured. Its purpose was to stimulate, but only the individual himself knows if the purpose was achieved.

Accolades could be heaped forever on those who helped in the program, but we'll only say here that it was carried out letter-perfect.

Perhaps it is not fair to look at IMPACT microcosmically, but it should be seen in the overall scope of this semester. This has been a year of change, a year of interest, a year of student involvement. It could be that IMPACT is another manifestation of this feeling.

Or it could be that this overall feeling is part of what President Stewart H. Smith, referring to IMPACT, called "a help in the transition of Marshall from a college to a university with a university atmosphere."

Information given on paying fees for fall preregistration

Information on payment of preregistration fees for first semester 1968-69 has been released by the Office of Business and Finance.

A form for the payment of fees is enclosed with each course schedule booklet and it must be filled out and brought to the Cashier's Office along with the schedule request form.

Fees for enrollment will be due upon receipt of the statement which will be mailed about July 15. Payment must be made no later than Aug. 9. If payment is not received by that time, enrollment will be cancelled.

Fees will not be accepted until the statements are issued.

An addressed return envelope will be included with the statement. Students should enclose the stub of the statement, a check made payable to Marshall University and his or her ID card.

A validated ID card will be returned and the cancelled check will serve as a receipt.

Payments will be accepted at the Cashier's Office between 8 a.m. and noon and 1-4:15 p.m. Monday through Friday, July 15 to Aug. 9.

If a student receives any kind of financial aid through the University, the statement will be sent to the Financial Aid Office from which he may obtain a check upon return to campus for classes. Payment must be received at the Cashier's Office by Sept. 28 or enrollment will be cancelled.

Students having reservations in the dormitories will be billed for one-half the food service fee for the fall semester. Payment of this fee will be due at the same time as the enrollment fee.

The remainder of the food service fee will be billed in October with payment due by Nov. 15.

Students will not be allowed to occupy dormitory rooms until one-half of the food service fee is paid.

Campus comment!

Ever wonder why students don't participate or attend major functions sponsored by various instruments of the university? What about the students who missed Artist Series, convocations, pep rallies, athletic events and theatrical productions? Is it disinterest, lack of time, better things to do, or just plain apathy? When students congregate they sometimes talk about what went on the night before.

Questions such as, "Did you see the artists series last night?" "Were you at the game last night?" "Did you listen to that 'Impact' speaker or go to the 'Barfenon Revue?" are often answered "No".

Are Marshall students apathetic, lacking in spirit? In a nutshell, most students say "no" and that everybody has their ups and downs.

Jackie Holt, Hinton freshman, asked students why they didn't attend Mr. Humphrey's appearance.

"Since I am unable to vote, I have apathetic views toward politics." Wayne Westfall, Hinton sophomore.

"I didn't want to fight the crowd." Karen English, Charleston freshman.

"I couldn't get up to dressing for the occasion." Jim Adams, Mansfield, Ohio freshman.

Holt said that the majority of the students questioned watched the Vice President on television.

He said most of the students were sincere in their answers and that this simply reflected the individuality of many people in regard to deciding what functions to attend.

Record number of 'J' students will intern

A record number of journalism internships have been granted to Marshall students this summer, according to Dr. William E. Francois, Journalism Department chairman.

SCHEDULES DISTRIBUTED
Three hours after the Registrar's Office began distributing Schedule of Courses booklet for first semester, 1968, approximately 4,000 had been given out. A steady flow of students appeared in the office Wednesday morning.

John Marshall topic of 67-68 yearbook

By LARRY MAYNOR
Staff Reporter

The theme of the 1967-68 Chief Justice will be "What Is John Marshall?" The question will be answered by the division pages of each section, according to Kathy Gray, Dunbar junior and editor in chief.

Last year's Chief Justice is a tough act to follow," said Miss Gray, "but I feel that our yearbook will be a good one too."

Size of the yearbook has been converted back to the regular University format. "We didn't have much to do with the change," said Miss Gray. "The size of the book was decided by contract nearly a year ago."

Introductory color pages with symbolic photographs of campus life will appear again.

In respect to President Stewart H. Smith and his accomplishments, a section of the Chief Justice will be devoted to him.

"It will be a synopsis of what has taken place during his 23 years at the University," said Miss Gray.

A new events section has been added to encompass events of IMPACT Week and the University Theater.

One of the most talked about entries in last year's yearbook was the picture sequence of Miss Chief Justice. The simulated "Playboy" layout, posing in a centerfold, Miss Chief Justice clad in a two-piece swim suit, isn't likely to be repeated this year.

The yearbook will be issued to students the first week of school next September.

Chances are that several players from the Mid-American Conference will be drafted by the National Basketball Association once the second round drafts begin on May 8.

Top men mentioned by the professional clubs are Marshall's Bob Redd and George Stone along with Fred Foster of Miami. Walt Piatkowski of Bowling Green was also expected to be high in the NBA drafts, but the 6-8 scoring ace recently signed with Denver of the American Basketball Association.

The benefits a school and conference reaps from having its players in the professional ranks are many, especially in the field of recruiting. For example, Hal Greer, the former Herd cager, now with the Philadelphia 76ers, helped Marshall recruit Russel and Eugene Lee, the two high school seniors from Boston, Mass.

As of now there are five players in the NBA who are from MAC schools, but this number could double after this year's drafting of college players continues.

Mid-American representatives in the pro ranks now include, Greer, Wayne Embry from Miami of Ohio, and now with the Boston Celtics, Nate Thurmond of the San Francisco Warriors who played college ball at Bowling Green along with Howard Komives of the New York Knicks and George Patterson, the former star at Toledo, is with the Detroit Pistons.

This number does not include the former MAC cagers that are now in the new American Basketball Association, of which there are several.

The 'Big Ten' is leading all conferences in number of professional NBA players with 15, followed by the Missouri Valley with 11, the Pacific Eight is next with nine, the Atlantic Coast and Southeastern each have seven and the Big Eight and MAC are in the fifth place among the conferences with five each.

Fifth place among 27 conferences is not bad considering some of these conferences have as many as 10 teams compared to the MAC's seven.

The Mid-American also ranks ahead of the Southern Conference, which West Virginia University once belonged. The SC has four NBA players, two from Davidson and two from WVU (Jerry West and Rod Thorn.)

But getting back to the MAC, Bowling Green's two representatives, Thurmond and Komives, played on the same team together for two years and as could be expected led their team to successive titles in 1961-62 and 62-63.

The surprising thing is Komives who did not achieve the stardom Thurmond did in the NBA, over-shadowed the latter at Bowling Green as far as the record book goes.

Both were among the few to be named to the MAC first team during all three years of their varsity careers, and Komives holds four MAC records and nine Bowling Green individual marks. Thurmond holds only the rebound record at Bowling Green. Komives, a three year veteran of the pro wars, is the top scorer in Bowling Green history and Thurmond is sixth on BG's alltime list.

In fact, the only other man in the NBA to hold an MAC record is Embry, who tied the record for most rebounds in one game with 34, back in 1957.

FOOTBALL GAME

The Fourth Annual Alumni Varsity Football game will be held May 11 at 7:30 p.m. at Fairfield Stadium. Admission for adults is $2.00; students will be admitted with ID cards, and all others $.50. Friday night there will be a stag party of old football players which is referred to as a "conditioning party."

GOLF MATCH

It's conference competition this weekend for the Herd golfers as they meet Kent State, Western Michigan and Bowling Green of the MAC in a quadrangular match Saturday at Kent State. Saturday's match will be very important for Marshall as they are now 3-7 in the MAC. Ohio University leads the MAC with a record of 6-1.

Intramural playoff Monday

By LARRY GRIMSLEY
Staff Reporter

Regular season softball and golf end this weekend and a track meet is scheduled May 11. These are the highlights of the next two weeks of intramurals.

The last softball games of the regular season will be played Friday with the championship tournament beginning Monday.

By this time each team will have played three games.

The top two teams from each of the six brackets will be placed in single elimination competition for the tournament.

In action Friday and Monday Sigma Alpha Epsilon 4 defeated the Southern All-Stars 6-5; Alpha Sigma Phi 1 defeated Exile 2, 9-1; the Black Beauties defeated Lambda Chi Alpha 1, 9-2; the Saints defeated Everybody's Nuts 9-8; Lambda Chi Alpha 2 defeated Fire 2, 5-4; Exile 1 defeated Tau Kappa Epsilon 1, 6-0; Zeta Beta Tau 1 defeated Sigma Alpha Epsilon 2, 3-1, and the Tin Men defeated the Seeds 9-1.

In other games played the Rebels forfeited to Exile 3; the Union Wrecks defeated Kappa Alpha 3, 13-7; Exile 4 defeated D-Nuts 15-8; Alpha Sigma Phi 2 defeated the South Five by a forfeit; Kappa Alpha 1 defeated Sigma Alpha Epsilon 1, 7-4; Pi Kappa Alpha 2 defeated Phi Kappa Tau 10-0, and Fire 1 defeated South Hall 2-1.

The intramural golf tournament, which began Monday, will end Saturday. If a foursome fails to show up for its regularly scheduled match, the match must be played by Saturday or it will constitute a forfeit.

There were 52 men signed up for this year's golf program as compared to only 22 last year.

The intramural track meet, scheduled for May 11 at 10 a.m. on the Gullickson Hall track, will feature six track events and three field events.

Track events to be run are: 100-yard dash; 220-yard dash; 440-yard dash; 440-yard relay; mile run, and mile relay.

PIATKOWSKI SIGNS

Walt Piatkowski of Bowling Green State University has signed as a second round draft choice of the Denver Rockets of the American Basketball Association. In three varsity years at BeeGee, Piatkowski led his teams in scoring. The 6-8 forward averaged over 20 points during his college career.

Linebacker sees wins

By ARNOLD MOLLETTE
Teachers College Journalist

Steve Duncan, Portsmouth, Ohio, sophomore, says he is happy to be at Marshall playing football.

He is a linebacker on the football team, which is currently active in spring practice. He said, "The attitude of the guys is serious. There is enthusiasm and optimism among the team."

Although Duncan is a sophomore he did not participate in football last fall. This was due to several reasons. The major reason among them is the rule which requires a transfer student to sit out a year to regain his eligibility. He also was suffering from the effects of a broken leg, which was given the O.K. by the doctor last month.

A graduate of Portsmouth High School, where the 6 foot, 210 pounder was a three-sport star and high scorer on the football team (as a halfback), Duncan visited several schools which were interested in his services. Among them were: Dayton, Kentucky, Eastern Kentucky and Indiana.

However, due to certain circumstances and an acquaintance, he accepted a grant to Ohio Wesleyan.

After his freshman season he decided to switch schools. He narrowed his choices to Kent and Marshall, deciding upon MU because of its proximity to his home, and a possible chance to start.

Despite certain difficulties, he began his year of "apprenticeship" the first semester and will be eligible for the varsity this fall, with three full years of eligibility remaining.

He is a physical education major, with a minor in either political science or social studies.

Concerning football, he said, "The coaching staff is one of the best. They work you hard, but you respect them. The boys like to work for them. Before long seven or eight wins is going to be common. Next year? At least 5-5."

Tennis team tries for first victory

The tennis team will be trying for its first win in six starts today in a match with Morris Harvey in Charleston.

The April 23 match with Morris Harvey was postponed because of rain. "We were winning the match with Morris Harvey before it was rained out," Coach Knouse said, "and hopefully we can win our first match today."

The next match will be Friday against Toledo at 3 p.m. on the Gullickson Hall courts and Coach Knouse said he would go with the same players he used against Morris Harvey.

Student reaction to poet is mixed

By PAT GROSECK
Feature Writer

One of the reasons Allen Ginsberg said he came to Marshall was because he had "never had a chance to dig the southern scene."

He said he found the student reaction to be "friendly." He said he expected, "more growling and hostility" in the crowd, but firmly stated there was none.

On the other hand, the students reacted to Ginsberg with mixed sentiments, or no sentiments at all.

Tammy Niday, Huntington freshman, said she did not understand the poet's various chants. She said they did not do anything to her but found them interesting. She said she had "never heard anything like it before."

Rosa Frey, Huntington senior, said she felt his poetry is an indication of the new trend in poetry and feels it will be marked as our generation's poetic form.

Miss Frey said she has heard his poetry before and feels it is calculated as shock in presenting the relevant message. She expected, "a blah acceptance" of it on the Marshall campus and said, "They (the students) never get hot on anything, especially the world situation."

She said, "They are too middle class for that."

Jean McClure, St. Albans sophomore, when asked what she thought about Ginsberg's poetry as poetry said "I don't know that much about poetry." When asked what she thought of his message and presentation she said, "I don't understand it that well."

Joseph Seiver, Atlantic City, N. J., junior, said he enjoyed Ginsberg's poetry. He said it "shock awakened me the way it was presented." He said that although he has heard his poetry before, the personal delivery was very effective.

Commenting on his chants he said "I think they are cool because rhythmically and esthetically I have some knowledge of this, but most people are ignorant of what they mean and don't know what is going on."

Muci Phillips, Weirton graduate, said she was surprised at the shock of the students upon hearing some of Ginsberg's language. She said "Certainly this is language most of them have heard before."

When commenting on his message she said, "I don't think most people used to modern technology and comfort can return to the ecology he presented."

Fred Phillips, Weirton graduate, said the language in his poetry selections was used to coordinate with his topic of free speech. Phillips said that deep inside, Ginsberg was "probably hoping to get arrested by one of the Barney Fives of the Bible Belt to prove his point."

Graduating senior is new alumni assistant

By RICHARD CLINE
Teachers College Journalist

The Marshall University Alumni Association has hired Don Foose, Huntington senior, as assistant to Harry M. Sands, director of alumni affairs.

Foose, a sociology major from Beckley, will graduate this May.

Mr. Sands said he will be concerned with three main areas. These include student cultivation, class reunion, and the Marshall Alumni magazine. Foose has worked six months part-time and has helped in a number of projects including the senior banquet and scholarship fund.

According to Mr. Sands, "Don has already proven to be a valuable assistant to the Alumni Association. Even though he has only been able to work part-time, he was successful in promoting the largest attendance ever at the senior banquet. More than 130 seniors attended."

Mr. Sands said "There are several plans that the Alumni Association is working on that I feel Don can be of great help. One such plan is the Marshall Invitational Basketball Tournament."

Drive started for new class

A movement has been started on campus to have a literature course dealing with Negro and Afro-American authors taught here.

Pat Groseck, Philadelphia junior and temporary chairman of the Action Committee of FREE (Freedom and Racial Equality for Everyone), said Katura Carey, Portsmouth, Va., junior, is circulating a petition to secure the names of students interested in such a course. The petition is to be presented to the English Department.
